Farm Animal Three-Part Cards

A free printable from cosmicnissa · by Nissa Newton

For each animal there are three cards: a control card (the picture with its name), a picture card, and a name label. Print on card stock if you can, and cut on the dashed lines - everything is made to be very easy to cut. Keep the control cards whole; cut the picture cards and the labels apart.

Name the animals together first, using the control cards. Then the child lays out the control cards, matches each picture to its control, and matches each name label last - and checks the whole row against the control cards. The control is the child's own way of knowing the work is right, with no adult correcting. Start with three or four animals the child already knows, and add the rest as the first ones become easy. The photographs are the author's own, of real animals.
